

Good afternoon.

I write with regards to Mr. Tumuluri's allegations in my regard.

I would like to clarify that they are completely false and baseless.

As a matter of fact, it was Steward Healthcare who approached us at the United Nations General Assembly in New York, expressing their interest in acquiring Vitals in Malta.

This was corroborated by the Minister for Health, who said that it was Steward Healthcare who initiated contact with the Government, expressing their intention to assume control of the concession. The meeting in New York served as the point of contact between the two parties.

It is unfortunate that Mr. Tumuluri has chosen to make such outrageous claims, and I question his motives behind doing so. It appears that he has a vivid imagination and is attempting to associate this case with the tragic murder of Mrs. Caruana Galizia, which is absolutely horrendous.

I vehemently protest against these baseless allegations and false claims made by Mr. Tumuluri. It is disheartening to witness such unfounded accusations that not only lack any factual basis but also seek to tarnish the reputation of those involved.

I urge responsible journalism and ethical reporting, where the focus is on accuracy, and the pursuit of the truth. It is essential to separate fact from fiction and refrain from spreading sensationalized narratives that only serve to mislead the public.

Best regards,

Keith
